At 92 Years He Gets Religion-Leaves Wealth to Needy Preachers-All at Once Becomes Poor and Seize Cash-

CHICAGO, Jan. 9 .- A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says:

The contest instituted by James R Palmer, of California, the ninety-sixyear-old brother of Francis Asbury Palmer, to upset the latter's will, came to trial yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Dugro, and a jury. The beginning of the case was remarkable for the attack made on ministers by Flamen B. Chandler counsel for the contestant. The ministers, he said, bambloogled Palmer out of his money.

Francis Ashbury Palmer died at the age of 92 on November 1, 1902. He had been president of the Broadway National Bank for fifty-two years, and owned a majority of the stock, which he sold for $2,125,000. A year before he died Palmer made a will by which, after distributing $120,000 among various religious and educational institutions, and remembering a few relatives, he left the residuary estate to the Francis Ashbury Palmer fund, the chief objects are to support missions and ministers and to help poor students to ship in the Trans-Continental Clergy become ministers or religious teachers. Cured Lumbago.

A. B. Canman, Chicago, writes March 4, 1903. "Having been troubled with Lumbago, at different times and tried one physician after another then differone physician after another then different ointments and liniments, gave it up altogether. So I tried once more, and got a bottle of Ballard's Snow Linius Lag sum and Log sum ment, which gave me almost instant equ up seasoned; find totula equ relief. I can cheerfully recommend it.
